

At last, a cactus without barbed wire trimmings. Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, after years of experiment, has produced this useful addition to the nation's food supply. The photograph was taken at his California ranch.

International.

This is the famous camping out party, at which President Harding, Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford were among the guests. They spent a night and part of two days in the Maryland woods. The President and Henry Ford are listening to Mr. Edison as he reads from a newspaper.

President Harding presenting the United States open championship cup to Jim Barnes of Pelham, who won the trophy from a brilliant field at the Columbia Country Club, Washington, D. C.

Edwin Levick.

Above—Former German cruiser Frankfort, rusty and dismantled, is seen here just before she sank off Hampton Roads as the result of bombing by U. S. airplanes.

Central News.

At left—Bombs weighing 2,000 pounds each, dropped from airplanes, exploded close to the sides of the former German battleship Ostfriesland off the Virginia Capes and sank her.

Navy official photo, from Underwood & Underwood.

Lord Astor's children wading ashore after the shipwreck of an old boat on the lake of the beautiful estate at Cliveden, England.

Topical Press.

At left—Gen. Macready, commander of the British forces in Ireland, arriving at the Mansion House, Dublin, to sign the truce with Sinn Fein. He is shown being greeted by Lord Mayor O'Neil, while the crowd cheers.

Topical Press.

At right—Arrival of Eamon De Valera at No. 10 Downing street, London, the Prime Minister's official residence, for the beginning of the conference to bring peace in Ireland.

(c) Kadel & Hertel.

